OPERA FIRE FATAL TO BAUGHMAN

CIRCLING the CIRCLE

—We'll say this is real spring weather that comes to Circleville and we hope it's here to stay.

—Furnas Ice Cream installers of Frigidaires, are placing a refrigerator at the grocery store of Charles Garner and Son, at the corner of South Pickaway and Walnut streets.

—Over 3,000 people paid their respects to the late Senator Willis by driving to Delaware, Sunday, and viewing his remains at the home. Among them were many Circleville people.

—Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, wires Hervey J. Sweeney, clerk of the Board of Elections, that the death of U. S. Senator Frank B. Willis makes no change in ballots. Follow certified form.

—In order to reduce its interest charges, decrease its ratio of its capital stock and simplify its capital structure, the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway company has just made application to the Interstate Commerce commission for authority to issue and sell $100,000,000 of 4 1/2 per cent Consolidated Mortgage Gold Bonds and $49,157,400 of 6 per cent preferred stock.

—James N. Robenberg, chairman of the American Jewish Joint Agriculture corporation, through the aid of which 100,000 Jews have in the last four years settled on upward of 1,000,000 acres of land in Russia and have become self-supporting farmers, has confirmed the report that Julius Rosenwald of Chicago had agreed to subscribe $5,000,000 for the continuance and further development of the work.

—By a few strokes of the pen President Coolidge has made possible final settlement of claims of Germany and her allies for the more than $500,000,000 in wealth seized here when the United States entered the World war.

—Do you know your Ohio? The Ohio State Agriculture department bulletin issued weekly says that only 4 per cent of Ohio's 40,730 square miles lies waste. That doesn't mean, however, that more isn't wasted. The state has 30,000 miles of inland lakes, but also has a quarter million farms. Ohio's resources, farms, mills, mines and factories produce $6,000,000,000 worth of goods a year. Ohio produces ten million pounds of wool, thirty million pounds of butter and a hundred million dozens of eggs. In livestock she has a million horses (in spite of the "auto age"), two million cattle and hogs, each, and a million and a half of sheep. Not so bad, eh? And Pickaway county is producing her share.

—Officials of the London Commercial club received a complimentary letter from M. C. Meigs, publisher of the Chicago Herald, for having the name of the city painted on a roof and this saved the publisher and his party in a plane, off its course, from making a forced landing. Locating the city, the fliers were able to get back on their course. That was fine but "where" asked the Londoners "is this sign located?" An exhaustive search had revealed nothing of the kind, but later D. E. Pfarr, radio and tire dealer, remembered that he had seen the name while taking a ride over the city and said it was on an unoccupied building near the Pennsylvania depot. The name had been painted there 12 years ago and was found to be somewhat dulled by time and cinders, but the Legionnaires, furnished with paint and brushes by the club has brightened up the name.

—A big cock main was pulled off at Buckeye Lake early Sunday morning. All the lovers of this kind of sport were there. It is said that this city furnished its complement. The main was fought for $10,000, so press reports claim.

There are some game roosters, raised and bred here and they are taken out at nights to cocking mains, but where no one but the breeders know.

AIRPLANES TO FLY AT RITES OF OHIO SOLON

Twenty of Ohio's Representatives to Attend Funeral On Tuesday.

(Bulletin)

DELAWARE, O., April 2—Announcement was made this afternoon that funeral services for the late Senator Frank B. Willis will be held from the late home at 2 p. m. Tuesday.

DELAWARE, O., April 2—Seven planes of the 112th observation squadron of the Ohio National Guard will act as an air escort during the funeral services of Senator Frank B. Willis tomorrow afternoon, it was announced here today, when the family of the Ohio solon accepted the offer of squadron commander, Major Thomas J. Herbert, of Cleveland.

Twenty of Ohio's representatives in the seventieth congress will attend the funeral services, according to advices received from Congressman John C. Speaks at Washington. Two of the representatives will be prevented from attending the funeral services because of illness, Speaks explained.

Col. Carmi Thompson, manager of the Willis campaign in Ohio has advised C. A. Jones, secretary of the late senator, that all of the delegates and alternates appearing for Senator Willis on the Ohio ballot will also be in attendance.

Delaware, over the Sabbath was the Mecca for thousands who visited the late residence on Franklin street where the body of Senator Willis reposed in state from 2 to 4 p. m.

Prayers for the family of the late senator who was stricken Friday night as he prepared to make his homecoming speech, were offered in all of the churches of the city at all of the services yesterday.

COLUMBUS, O., April 2—(INS)—Attorney Cyrus Locher, Cleveland, state director of commerce, Democrat, today retained his position as the person most likely to be selected by Governor Vic Donahey to succeed the late U. S. Senator Frank B. Willis, as one of Ohio's representatives in the United States senate.

Donahey, it was indicated today is expected to announce Wednesday whom he will appoint.

SANDUSKY, O., April 2—(INS)—Honoring the memory of Senator Frank B. Willis, the memorial light in Perry Memorial, at Put-in-Bay, was lighted last night and a wreath was laid at the foot of the monument. Residents of Put-in-Bay wired condolences to Mrs. Willis.

HOOPER AND SMITH TO KNOW
Their Fate After Presidential Balloting.

LANSING, Mich., April 2—(UP)—Michigan went to the polls today to express a preference on the candidates for the presidency of the United States.

On the Republican ballot appeared the name of Herbert C. Hoover, secretary of commerce, and on the Democratic ballot was the name of Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York.

The voters were privileged, however, to go outside these two names and write in on the ballot the name of any other candidate or potential candidate whom they might prefer. Frank O. Lowden, Charles C. Dawes and Senator Thomas J. Walsh were expected to receive votes.

The object of the election was to express sentiment in regard to the candidates.

AL FIXES NOSE

CHICAGO, April 2—(INS)—Al Jolson, famous black-face comedian, appeared today with what he termed a "beautiful nose." It was reconstructed Saturday to remove a blemish sustained ten years ago when Jolson was sparring with Jack Dempsey. A com-molseug o' beautiful noses.

HE SLEEPS ON

NEW YORK, April 2—(INS)—Although his foot was wedged in a subway turnstile for forty-five minutes early today, six-year-old John Caffey became bored with efforts to release him and fell asleep. The boy's foot was caught as he was being carried from the station by his father. A patrolman attempted to release him without success, and called the rescue squad of the fire department.

Firemen finally had to bend a heavy iron arm of the turnstile to free the boy, who slept through the operation in his father's arms.

WOTTA FAST WORLD!

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., April 2—(INS)—At noon today Miss Gladys Shaw, of Newark, N. J., will climb into a mail plane here, armed with a ticket to Los Angeles. Tomorrow evening she expects to have dinner with Mrs. Floetha Shaw, her mother in Pasadena.

The thirty-six hour trip means day and night flying. There is no emergency about the trip. Miss Shaw is just doing it because it is the fastest way across the continent.

THESE MOVIE STARS

NEW YORK, April 2—(INS)—"There will never be a divorce between us — it would be too terrible."

Dolores Del Rio and her husband, Jaime, are in one accord on that score. But as for separation, she is in Hollywood and he is in New York City, with no intention of going out to the film colony, where he is known as "Mr. Dolores Del Rio."

"I want to be somebody in my own name," Jaime said, "and that is impossible out there. But my wife and I love and understand each other, and will not be broken apart by busybodies. We will manage to see each other as often as possible."

In Hollywood, Miss Del Rio was equally emphatic, but took their separation more seriously:

"My husband and I have decided we must each pursue our own careers. But we are both perfectly friendly and believe divorce is a terrible thing."

ONE HURT WHEN
CAR IS DITCHED

Mrs. D. T. Ryan was injured in an automobile accident while returning from Columbus Sunday. Mrs. Ryan's son, Mr. John Ryan, of Columbus, was driving the car at the time of the accident. He and his wife, Mrs. Helen Ryan, were uninjured although the force of the collision was enough to turn their Ford sedan completely over.

A car driving in front of them slowed down quickly to avoid striking another car that had been forced into the ditch and as the traffic was rather heavy Mr. Ryan had no choice but to take the ditch. The left rear wheel of their car caught in the bumper of the one in front of them and turned them over.

A remarkable feature of the accident was that no glass was broken in any of the windows of the car.

LIQUOR KILLS ONE

NEW YORK, April 2—(INS)—Seven persons, two of them unidentified, were in Bellevue hospital today critically ill from the effects of poison liquor. They were picked up unconscious in the streets.

One death was attributed to bad liquor. The victim was John A. Whalley, a member of the fire department for thirty-four years.

ATLANTIC RACE IN AIR LIKELY IT IS RUMORED

Junkers German Plane May Have to Race Frenchman Across Ocean to U. S.

DUBLIN, April 2—(INS)—With the Junkers monoplane Bremen still weatherbound in its hangar at the Saldonnal airfield, interest in the Trans-Atlantic flight was revived today by a report that Commandant James Fitzmaurice, head of the Free State air force, would accompany Capt. Koehl as relief pilot, and a rumor that an unnamed French pilot was contemplating a flight from Baldonnal in an effort to beat the German plane across to America.

Th report that Fitzmaurice would act as relief-pilot on the Bremen, followed the departure of Arthur Spindler for Germany last night.

Asks Permission
The French pilot, who is believed to be Maurice Drouhin, is reported to have approached free state officials for permission to fly to Baldonnal preparatory to making a Trans-Atlantic attempt. Fitzmaurice and Captain McIntosh attempted a Trans-Atlantic flight last year but were forced back by adverse conditions.

Slightly improved weather conditions today gave the German fliers hope of being able to take-off tomorrow.

According to an unconfirmed rumor current here today, the next attempt to span the Atlantic from Europe to America may be developed into a race between an unnamed Frenchman in a mystery plane and the Junkers monoplane Bremen.

It was reported that the Frenchman has requested the free state government for permission to fly to the Baldonnal airfield preparatory to making a Trans-Atlantic attempt. Government officials, however, refused to comment on the report.

Officials Silent
At the airfield, officials had nothing to say but it was understood that they were rather apprehensive of having the Frenchman and the three Germans together. Von Huenefeld, backer of the Bremen fight, has been reported as having strong monarchist sympathies, and it is feared he may have the antipathy for Frenchmen generally accredited to Prussian monarchists.

The unknown Frenchman is believed to be Maurice Drouhin. Last year Drouhin agreed to pilot Charles A. Levine to America after giving up his position as pilot of the huge French plane, Bluebird, which was being groomed for a Trans-Atlantic hop, because it took too long to get the plane ready.

Although weather reports were more favorable today, Capt. Koehl did not think they had improved sufficiently to warrant a take-off and the Bremen remained in its hangar.

MAN INJURED IN CRASH OF CARS

In an automobile accident Saturday night Augustus Sommers, a carpenter of Chillicothe, suffered a fracture of the right arm near the shoulder.

Mr. Sommers accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Timmons were coming here to spend Sunday. Just as their auto reached Corwin street at the corner of Court and about to negotiate a turn, an auto coming from the south turned into Corwin at the same time.

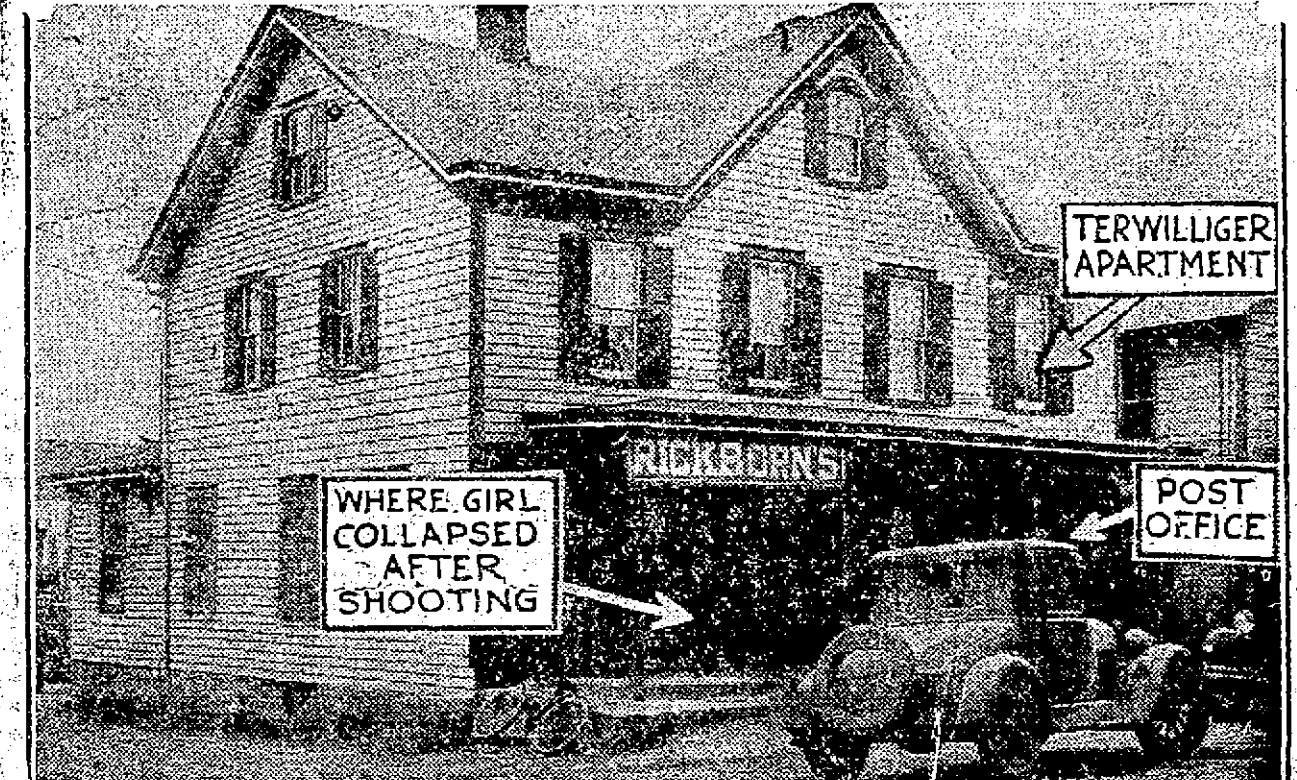

In order to avoid a collision, the driver of the car attempted to get out of his way, struck a tree at the Ruggles corner, and the car turned spilling the occupants of the auto. Mr. and Mrs. Timmons escaped with slight injuries.

Mr. Sommers was brought to the office of Dr. D. V. Courtwright, where his arm was dressed. He was later taken in Aibaugh's ambulance to the City hospital in Chillicothe.

IS RECOVERING

Tarlton College Student Honored By New Position

Virgil E. Poling, Tarlton, Ohio, has been named as student representative for Ohio Wesleyan university in Pickaway county. University officers have just named student representatives for the university in each of the 88 counties of Ohio.

The functions of the student representatives will be to answer all inquiries which high school students of this county may care to make concerning the university, and to assist high school students of the county who are interested in entering Ohio Wesleyan university to make the proper arrangements for enrollment. Each of these representatives has made a special study of the regulations of the university and particularly the requirements for admission.

All Ohio Wesleyan university student representatives will be in their home counties during the university spring vacation, March 30 to April 10, and may be called upon by high school students who desire information concerning Ohio Wesleyan. These representatives will also answer any inquiries addressed to them by mail.

They will also assist the university officials in selection of the freshman class to be admitted next September. The university limits each freshman class to 300 men and 275 women.

GRAND JURORS HOLD SESSION

The April term of the grand jury convened this morning. Some fifty-nine witnesses were called, and a half dozen transcripts and cases were brought to the attention of the body. W. H. Pontious was selected foreman.

The members of the grand jury are: Mrs. Tom Rodgers, Wilson Dunkle, Rees Withnott, Paul Cronley, William Hamilton, Russ Bolderson, J. W. Costlow, D. A. Imbler, W. H. Pontious, Miss Maple Thompson, Miss Fannie Hook, Mrs. Charles Fellers, Albert Greishamer, Elmer Neff and Mrs. O. F. Heffner.

FIRE AT OPERA HOUSE RESULTS IN HIS DEATH

Brother of Owner of Grand Is Victim of Lamentable Tragedy.

Tragedy stalked at the Grand Opera House Saturday afternoon. The matinee show had just started. A crowd had started to fill up the theatre.

Suddenly the picture went black and Joseph Baughman, operator of the motion picture machine, emerged, his clothes and hair on fire.

Monday morning at 5 o'clock, death claimed Mr. Baughman in the Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, due to burns he received at this lamentable accident, and a host of friends and relatives are sorrowing at his sudden and unfortunate ending, as he was held in high esteem.

Brother Home Ill
Walker Baughman, the owner and manager of the theater was at home ill. He has been ill for a week. The show Saturday afternoon was being managed by his son, Proctor Baughman, who was on the stage when suddenly he noticed that half of the picture was black. He realized at once that something was wrong with the framing, and he left the stage, ran up the stairs to the operating room, and met his uncle coming out of the room, his clothing and hair on fire.

He quickly ran his hands down over the head and face of the burning man and extinguished the flames.

Mr. Baughman was suffering terribly when he was taken to the home of his brother, Walter Baughman, 121 South Scioto street in Rinehart's ambulance. He was able to walk into his brother's home, however, and Dr. Jackson was summoned.

The sleeves of his shirt hung in tatters, and blood was coming from the ends of his fingers, which had been seared by the hot flames of the burning film.

After his wounds were dressed he was given a hypodermic to relieve his sufferings.

Taken To Hospital
He was hurriedly taken to Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, where another delay occurred before the house surgeon took the case in hand. As soon as an examination was made little hopes were held for his recovery, as the fire had burned into the flesh. The burns were diagnosed as the second degree, which are usually fatal. When he came from under the anesthetic Sunday morning, he was delirious. His finally was prevailed upon to take some nourishment and in the afternoon seemed some better, and his family held hopes of his recovery. Towards evening, their hopes were dispelled as the patient gradually grew weaker. His life was fast ebbing away, and his soul took its flight on the wings of the morning, just before five o'clock.

His remains were removed to the home of his brother, on South Scioto street today.

Fire Department Called
Saturday afternoon the streets of the city are usually crowded, and when the fire engine came down the street with bells clanging, in answer to alarm 12, and stopped at the Opera House, a big crowd gathered, and the police were armed into duty to keep the crowd back from the burning building.

A matinee was on, and the theater was filled with a fair sized crowd. Usually children attend the theater on this day. No panic ensued and the audience was dismissed following the tragedy. Mothers, whose loved ones were in the audience, rushed to the building, fearful that their children were still in the Opera House, but their fears were soon dispelled, when they found their children on the street in front of the theater, watching the firemen at work.

The third reel of a Western film, known as "The Cyclone of the Range," was being shown, suddenly the screen went dark. Trouble was sensed at once. A loop in the rapidly moving machine had developed, and the celluloid ribbon had jumped two sprockets on the wheel. The operator saw at once that the film was packing in the case of the machine. The cause of the accident was a badly framed Candidates in the Herald and Union-Herald's great campaign will do well to look over their receipt stubs and determine how many of their subscribers will give them a second subscription. Several workers have said their territory was getting worked out, that they were hard-pressed to know where to work, etc. That is a natural consequence at this stage of the race, but even there are many people in Pickaway county who will subscribe with the first candidate who comes along. Your territory may seem to be finished; however, there are with-out doubt several people in each community who have not subscribed and will do so when approached.

At the airfield, officials had nothing to say but it was understood that they were rather apprehensive of having the Frenchman and the three Germans together. Von Huenefeldt, backer of the Bremen flight, has been reported as having strong monarchist sympathies, and it is feared he may have the antipathy for Frenchmen generally accredited to Prussian monarchists.

The unknown Frenchman is believed to be Maurice Drouhin. Last year Drouhin agreed to pilot Charles A. Levine to America after giving up his position as pilot of the huge French plane, Bluebird, which was being groomed for a Trans-Atlantic hop, because it took too long to get the plane ready.

Although weather reports were more favorable today, Capt. Koehl did not think they had improved sufficiently to warrant a take-off and the Bremen remained in its hangar.

MAN INJURED IN CRASH OF CARS

In an automobile accident Saturday night Augustus Sommers, a carpenter of Chillicothe, suffered a fracture of the right arm near the shoulder.

Mr. Sommers accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Timmons were coming here to spend Sunday. Just as their auto reached Corwin street at the corner of Court and about to negotiate a turn, an auto coming from the south turned into Corwin at the same time.

In order to avoid a collision, the driver of the car attempted to get out of his way, struck a tree at the Ruggles corner, and the car turned spilling the occupants of the auto. Mr. and Mrs. Timmons escaped with slight injuries.

Mr. Sommers was brought to the office of Dr. D. V. Courtwright where his arm was dressed. He was later taken in Albaugh's ambulance to the City hospital in Chillicothe.

Tarlton College Student Honored By New Position

Virgil E. Poling, Tarlton, Ohio, has been named as student representative for Ohio Wesleyan university in Pickaway county. University officers have just named student representatives for the university in each of the 88 counties of Ohio.

The functions of the student representatives will be to answer all inquiries which high school students of this county may care to make concerning the university, and to assist high school students of the county who are interested in entering Ohio Wesleyan university to make the proper arrangements for enrollment. Each of these representatives has made a special study of the regulations of the university and particularly the requirements for admission.

All Ohio Wesleyan university student representatives will be in their home counties during the university spring vacation, March 30 to April 10, and may be called upon by high school students who desire information concerning Ohio Wesleyan. These representatives will also answer any inquiries addressed to them by mail.

They will also assist the university officials in selection of the freshman class to be admitted next September. The university limits each freshman class to 300 men and 275 women.

Candidates in the Herald and Union-Herald's great campaign will do well to look over their receipt stubs and determine how many of their subscribers will give them a second subscription. Several workers have said their territory was getting worked out, that they were hard-pressed to know where to work, etc. That is a natural consequence at this stage of the race, but even there are many people in Pickaway county who will subscribe with the first candidate who comes along. Your territory may seem to be finished; however, there are without doubt several people in each community who have not subscribed and will do so when approached.

FIRE AT OPERA HOUSE RESULTS IN HIS DEATH

Brother of Owner of Grand Is Victim of Lamentable Tragedy.

Tragedy stalked at the Grand Opera House Saturday afternoon. The matinee show had just started. A crowd had started to fill up the theatre.

Suddenly the picture went black and Joseph Baughman, operator of the motion picture machine, emerged, his clothes and hair on fire.

Monday morning at 5 o'clock, death claimed Mr. Baughman in the Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, due to burns he received at this lamentable accident, and a host of friends and relatives are sorrowing at his sudden and unfortunate ending, as he was held in high esteem.

Brother Home Ill
Walker Baughman, the owner and manager of the theatre was at home ill. He has been ill for a week. The show Saturday afternoon was being managed by his son, Proctor Baughman, who was on the stage when suddenly he noticed that half of the picture was black. He realized at once that something was wrong with the framing, and he left the stage, ran up the stairs to the operating room, and met his uncle coming out of the room, his clothing and hair on fire.

He quickly ran his hands down over the head and face of the burning man and extinguished the flames.

Mr. Baughman was suffering terribly when he was taken to the home of his brother, Walker Baughman, 121 South Scioto street in Rinehart's ambulance. He was able to walk into his brother's home, however, and Dr. Jackson was summoned.

The sleeves of his shirt hung in tatters, and blood was coming from the ends of his fingers, which had been seared by the hot flames of the burning films.

After his wounds were dressed, he was given a hypodermic to relieve his sufferings.

Taken To Hospital

He was hurriedly taken to Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, where another delay occurred before the house surgeon took the case in hand. As soon as an examination was made little hopes were held for his recovery, as the fire had burned into the flesh. The burns were diagnosed as the second degree, which are usually fatal. When he came from under the anesthetic Sunday morning, he was delirious. He finally was prevailed upon to take some nourishment and in the afternoon seemed some better, and his family held hopes of his recovery. Towards evening, their hopes were dispelled as the patient gradually grew weaker. His life was fast ebbing away, and his soul took its flight on the wings of the morning, just before five o'clock.

His remains were removed to the home of his brother, on South Scioto street today.

Fire Department Called
Saturday afternoon the streets of the city are usually crowded, and when the fire engine came down the street with bells clanging, in answer to alarm 12, and stopped at the Opera House, a big crowd gathered, and the police were armed into duty to keep the crowd back from the burning building.

A matinee was on, and the theater was filled with a fair sized crowd. Usually children attend the theater on this day. No panic ensued and the audience was dismissed following the tragedy. Mothers, whose loved ones were in the audience, rushed to the building, fearful that their children were still in the Opera House, but when they found their children on the street in front of the theater, watching the firemen at work.

The third reel of a Western film, known as "The Cyclone of the Range," was being shown, suddenly the screen went dark. Trouble was sensed at once. A loop in the rapidly moving machine had developed, and the celluloid ribbon had jumped two sprockets on the wheel. The operator saw at once that the film was packing in the case of the machine. The cause of the accident was a badly framed

IMPORTED DRY FORCE SOUGHT BY IRATE POLICE OF CHICAGO; SECOND STAGE IN CRIME DRAMA

Bombings and Gangsters Fought As Government and Local Officers Scrap.

CHICAGO, April 2. (INS).—George E. ("Hard-Boiled") Golding and his special squad of imported dry raiders were today's headlines in Chicago's hair-raising pre-election drama. They were being sought by 500 irate police officers for the "attempted murder of a defenseless citizen."

The incident which, temporarily at least, has taken the play from bombings and gangster shootings, and which threatens open warfare between government forces and local police, occurred last Thursday night when William Beatty, court bailiff and politician, was shot down in a raid led by Golding.

Police who are searching for the "hard-boiled" dry agent and his crew are armed with a warrant for "John Doe," a United States prohibition agent, charging him with assault to commit murder. Federal officials said John Doe was Myron Caffey, a member of Golding's squad, and admitted he was in hiding.

The government men said they would surrender Caffey today on demand. But this did not satisfy Commissioner of Police Michael Hughes, who ordered his men to bring in Golding and all his men. Commissioner Hughes said he was not prepared to take federal officials' word for the identity of the man who shot Beatty, he preferred to let the wounded man and Beatty's wife who was with him at the time, point out the man who did the shooting.

It was Commissioner Hughes who tackled the prefix "hard-boiled" to Golding's name. Hughes had been informed that the raider had been a "vopver in New York" and was "notoriously tough." Members of his squad, Hughes was told, were recruited from the ranks of "east side gunmen."

The temper of the police department and a large number of citizens over the manner in which Beatty was shot, was indicated at a "show-up" here when several hundred citizens called at the detective bureau to view suspects. Deputy Commissioner William E. O'Connor addressed the gathering as follows:

"Ladies and gentlemen—
"For your protection I want to warn you of a band of men now operating in Chicago. Their purpose here is not exactly known, but if these marauders, riding in heavily armed automobiles like gangsters, stop you in any place or on the street, take my advice and throw up your hands. Don't wait for them to ask you—as soon as you see them, throw up your hands, because they shoot to kill.
"These men travel in three auto-

"RELIGION AND HOPE"

Monday
"Resting in God"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "Rest in the Lord and wait patiently for him" (Psalm 37:7).
Read: Psalm 46.

MEDITATION: The important word here is "rest." Here is where we often make our mistake in prayer. We try to solve our problem while we pray. Prayer is not the time for solving problems but for taking them to God. We must leave them with God and wait. Even God requires time. Prayer should be a period of rest for the harried and burdened mind. We should stop working and expectantly and hopefully rest in God. This resting in the hour of our extremity is often the most effective attitude that we can take, for God works in a quiet mind as He can not work in a troubled one. Our minds may easily be so occupied with our reasonings that there is no place for God's promptings.

PRAYER: O Thou Helper of the sons of men, we bring Thee this hour our perplexing problems. Make clear to us, resting quietly in Thy presence, the way we should take and the things we should pursue. Let us not be anxious but wait patiently for Thy revealing. In Thy name, O Giver of life. Amen. F. J. Gahan

ROTHMAN'S
"Where You Can Always Do Better"

Better "today"

Yesterday's fashions are not the fashions of today. Not only are fashions in dress constantly changing, but our daily habits and mode of living are subject to a steady process of evolution.

Conveniences have been invented and placed in use—and life is happier, easier for them. Every year, almost every day, sees new things of beauty, of use or for our pleasure, introduced. And they are invariably brought to our attention by advertising.

Advertising is the medium that is responsible, in large measure, or the rapid and constant improvement in our living conditions. Without advertising this old world would be a dull and dreary place. With it, we progress; we learn about new things that we need—to shorten our tasks; to make ourselves more presentable; to brighten our leisure hours. Spend a few minutes with the advertising in this newspaper. Keep up to "today."

Princess Olina Tells of Her Wonderful Reception in America.

"I never knew such loyalty as Anna and Henry have given me," Princess Olina, of Transylvania declared, and I nodded an involuntary assent, remembering the doglike look in the eyes of the four-foot quadruped in the room down the hall when he had gazed at his young mistress.

"They started for New York just as soon as they received my letter," she went on. "Luckily, Henry is really a rich man, and as they have no children they feel that they can spend their money as they please. They never would spend much themselves, but for me, they would pour it out like water. However, I have had plenty to say. They only have had the expense of their trip to New York. But I know they are standing back of me whenever I need them. I am—yes, I am—yes, I won't need it. I can't help it to think of—"

Bombings and Gangsters Forgotten As Government and Local Officers Scrap.

CHICAGO, April 2 — (INS) — George E. ("Hard-Boiled") Golding and his special squad of imported dry raiders were today's headlines in Chicago's hair-raising pre-election drama. They were being sought by 500 irate police officers for the "attempted murder of a defenseless citizen."

The incident which, temporarily at least, has taken the play from bombings and gangster shootings, and which threatens open warfare between government forces and local police, occurred last Thursday night when William Beatty, court bailiff and politician, was shot down in a raid led by Golding.

Police who are searching for the "hard-boiled" dry agent and his crew are armed with a warrant for "John Doe," a United States prohibition agent, charging him with assault to commit murder. Federal officials said John Doe was Myron Caffey, a member of Goldings' squad, and admitted he was in hiding.

The government men said they would surrender Caffey today on demand. But this did not satisfy Commissioner of Police Michael Hughes, who ordered his men to bring in Golding and all his men. Commissioner Hughes said he was not prepared to take federal officials word for the identity of the man who shot Beatty, he preferred to let the wounded man and Beatty's wife, who was with him at the time, point out the man who did the shooting.

It was Commissioner Hughes who tacked the prefix "hard-boiled" to Golding's name. Hughes had been informed that the raider had been a "vopver in New York" and was "notoriously tough." Members of his squad, Hughes was told, were recruited from the ranks of "east side gunmen."

The temper of the police department and a large number of citizens over the manner in which Beatty was shot, was indicated at a "show-up" here when several hundred citizens called at the detective bureau to view suspects. Deputy Commissioner William E. O'Connor addressed the gathering as follows:

"Ladies and gentlemen—
"For your protection I want to warn you of a band of men now operating in Chicago. Their purpose here is not exactly known, but if these marauders, riding in heavily armed automobiles like gangsters, stop you in any place or on the street, take my advice and throw up your hands. Don't wait for them to ask you—as soon as you see them, throw up your hands, because they shoot to kill."

"These men travel in three auto-

Topic for Holy Week "RELIGION AND HOPE"

Monday "Resting in God"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "Rest in the Lord and wait patiently for him" (Psalm 37:7).

Read: Psalm 46.

MEDITATION: The important word here is "rest." Here is where we often make our mistake in prayer. We try to solve our problem while we pray. Prayer is not the time for solving problems but for taking them to God. We must leave them with God and wait. Even God requires time. Prayer should be a period of rest for the harried and burdened mind. We should stop working and expectantly and hopefully rest in God. This resting in the hour of our extremity is often the most effective attitude that we can take, for God works in a quiet mind as He can not work in a troubled one. Our minds may easily be so occupied with our reasonings that there is no place for God's promptings.

PRAYER: O Thou Helper of the sons of men, we bring Thee this hour our perplexing problems. Make clear to us, resting quietly in Thy presence, the way we should take and the things we should pursue. Let us not be anxious but wait patiently for Thy revealing. In Thy name, O Giver of life. Amen. F. J. Jacan

Better "today"

Yesterday's fashions are not the fashions of today. Not only are fashions in dress constantly changing, but our daily habits and mode of living are subject to a steady process of evolution.

Conveniences have been invented and placed in use—and life is happier, easier for them. Every year, almost every day, sees new things of beauty, of use or for our pleasure, introduced. And they are invariably brought to our attention by advertising.

Advertising is the medium that is responsible, in large measure, or the rapid and constant improvement in our living conditions. Without advertising this old world would be a dull and dreary place. With it, we progress; we learn about new things that we need—to shorten our tasks; to make ourselves more presentable; to brighten our leisure hours. Spend a few minutes with the advertising in this newspaper. Keep up to "today."

SUNSHINE CLUB HAS GOOD CARD FOR THURSDAY

Ervin Grace, Who Will Meet Rus Clump, Has Record Behind Him.

A good card has been arranged by the Sunshine Athletic club for next Thursday night. Rus Clump of Dayton, will meet the hard-hitting Columbus featherweight Ervin Grace in the main go and should be ten round of real scrapping. Both boys, not caring much about the science of boxing tear in and usually give the crowd a run for their money.

Grace hold decisions over Bobby Calvin, Tommy Tow, Mickey Flanagan, and a host of other good boys. He also fought the hard hitting Ray Meriton of Mansfield, who went to a draw with Pete Connel.

Has Rating In Ohio Clump is also well known as one of the best featherweights in the state. He recently fought to a draw with Tommy Rio who kayoed Bobby Calvin of Chillicothe.

The matchmakers have been very fortunate to secure two main go boys for the semi-finals. Rus Elliot, of Columbus, will meet K. O. Brown, also of Columbus. It should be a fast bout as the winner will be considered thebantamweight champ of the capital city. The boy that comes out on top in this bout will meet Mickey O'Reilly clever Circleville fighter.

Some Prelims The following will fight six rounds in the preliminaries and add much to the success of the card. Charles Scott, Circleville vs. Kid Moats, Chillicothe. Frosty Diehl, Chillicothe vs. Jack Shea, O. S. U. Salty Toles, Circleville, vs. Kid Brown, Chillicothe.

Tickets are now on sale at Mykantz Drug store.

Your Baby Needs Water as Well as Milk

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D. United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

TAKING care of a baby is one of the most exacting jobs in all the world. You may think it is hard to run a farm, or operate a drug store, or practice law. But I give you my word it is harder work to take care of one husky infant than it is to do all these other things combined. I should pity a young mother if I thought only of what she has to do. But God is good. There is a reward of satisfaction in motherhood that is above every other human reward. Seeing the baby grow up and develop into useful citizenship is joy unspeakable.

My duties carry me here and there about the country. I spend many hours on railroad trains. It is a common experience to see a couple traveling with two or three young children. Who is it holds the tired head and finds a new form of play for a restless child? Who prepares the feeding for the baby and supplies a lunch for another hungry mouth? It is the mother, of course. Poor papa sits about, feeling and looking as helpless and out of place as a rabbit at a wedding.

Every mother has an exacting and difficult job. It takes brains, energy, tirelessness, sleeplessness, resourcefulness and every other good quality to do it well. The young mother with her first baby is in a very trying and exhausting position. She has so much to learn, poor soul! I have heard my own mother tell how scared she was over the gurgles and funny sounds that were uttered by her first baby. On many occasions she was sure, she said, that the youngster was about to die. Everybody is touched by the crying of a baby. It always means something, and the young mother has to learn just what each kind of cry indicates, so far as her baby is concerned. Sometime we will consider at length what the cry of a baby may mean. Today I want to remind you that it may mean that the baby is thirsty.

Nobody can have good health without taking lots of water to drink. The water of the body are carried away and the more water we take, the more readily are these poisons eliminated.

The food that takes in of no value to us unless it is dissolved and made ready for absorption into the blood. Without water, we would dry up and die. Many a baby has gone thirsty because the young mother was never told how necessary it is to give the infant a drink ever once in a while. Bear that in mind, dear mother. Of course the food of the nursing baby is milk. But don't get the idea that on this account there need be no plain water to drink. Water is about as important as the milk. It is a sterilized bottle holding fairly warm and cooled water which the baby can hold. Give a little of this at frequent intervals between feedings.

Answer to Health Queries C. L. Q. What causes bloating of the stomach and belching after eating? A. Probably due to faulty diet and poor elimination. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

LENINGRAD PLANS AERIAL HOSPITAL Leningrad, April 2—(UP)—Plans for what is probably the first "aerial hospital" in the world have been announced by the director of the Metchnikoff hospital here, Professor Oppel.

The plans involve the construction of a large platform, hanging from four huge cerostats, and kept from floating off into space by a land anchor. This platform with glass walls as shields against the wind, will be kept aloft at a level suitable for tuberculosis patients.

Prof. Oppel explains that the air which tuberculosis patients find in mountain spots exists right in Leningrad or any other city. It is merely a matter of rising high enough to locate it. An aerial hospital such as he proposes, he claims, will be cheaper and more practicable than the journeys to strange places usually prescribed by physicians.

BIG PROMOTION TO BE NEEDED, OR NO PROFITS

He Is Going to Try to Pick Up Big Money With Oyster Fork, Says Walsh.

By DAVIS J. WALSH I. N. S. Sports Editor

NEW YORK, April 2—Tex Rickard already has proved that he is the greatest of all sport promoters. He now can begin proving that he is a magician. Only a guy who can reach into a tall hat with his bare arm and come out with a ton of coal, neatly tied in baby ribbon, figures to show the board of directors any great profit on a Tunney-Heeney fight for the heavyweight championship, announcement of which was made on Saturday.

For the first time since Rickard removed his bar apron in favor of a frock coat, he is going out to try to pick up the big money with an oyster fork. He always had a steam shovel in other years. The Gans-Nelson fight couldn't miss. Neither could Jeffries and Johnson. These fights promoted themselves, which was fortunate because it is doubtful whether Rickard knew what it was all about at that time.

Along Came Jack Later, when times were better and so was Rickard, along came Jack Dempsey with a series of knockouts and the Willard-Dempsey fight was made. So was the entire fight game when Dempsey won in the early minutes of play. The Dempsey-Carpentier fight was a "natural" because of the latter's glamor. Also the Dempsey-Firpo bout for the same reason. The first Dempsey-Tunney fight in Philadelphia drew a great crowd because nobody had seen Dempsey fight for three years and the Chicago affair repeated because they just had to see Dempsey again.

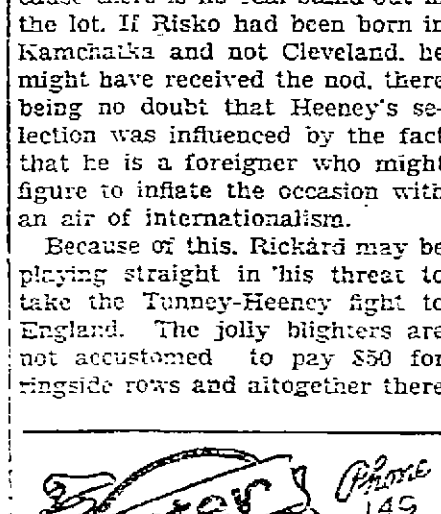

There's the story of Tex Rickard; Dempsey, Dempsey, Dempsey! Can this refrain be altered to sound like Heeney, Heeney, Heeney? The writer is pleased to think not.

For one thing, Heeney is a "cold" challenger. There is no demand for him to fight Tunney or anybody else, for that matter. They might have tossed him in there with Johnny Risko but in fight didn't figure to gross heavy money, after the apathetic series of "eliminations" that were held this winter, and so it was allowed to go by default. Now, they are asking this challenger, who couldn't draw too much with a natural rival to go in there and produce a million dollar gate with a champion whom everyone characterizes as a "lick-in against any of them."

Just Anyone And it could just as well have been any of "them." — Sharkey, Delaney, Risko, Paulino, etc.—because there is no real stand-out in the lot. If Risko had been born in Kamchatka and not Cleveland, he might have received the nod, there being no doubt that Heeney's selection was influenced by the fact that he is a foreigner who might figure to inflate the occasion with an air of internationalism.

Because of this, Rickard may be playing straight in his threat to take the Tunney-Heeney fight to England. The jolly lighters are not accustomed to pay $50 for ringside rows and altogether there

SPORTSMATTER BY FRANK GETTY

While the Olympic games have been held but eight times since their revival in 1896, the coming summer will, as a matter of history, be the occasion of the 302nd Olympiad.

The names of Olympic victors first were recorded in 776 B. C., when the games were held at Elis on the banks of the River Alpheus, one of the beauty spots of ancient Hellas.

Every four years, from that time until 393 A. D., when the games were abolished by order of the emperor Theodosius the Great, the foremost athletes of the civilized world met and competed in running, jumping and wrestling; very much as they will at Amsterdam next July.

The character of the contests—many of the details, even—have changed but little with the centuries. In the beginning, the games were part of a religious festival, under the protection of Olympian Jupiter, but the races and bouts, the weight throwing and the jumps were conducted as they are today.

There has been some refinement of athletics since those days of the 8th century, B. C., but not of athletes. The contestants in the ancient Olympic games brought devout concentration to their sports. The Greeks had never heard of over-emphasis.

Olympia, which was a sacred enclosure rather than a city, lay in the smiling valley of the Alpheus, not far from Pisa. The inhabitants of the latter city possessed the valley in ancient times, before the descent of the Dorians, and the Olympic games at first had a strictly local character.

It is not until a gentleman by the name of Iphitos, at the epoch of the Dorian invasion, took matters in hand that the games were definitely organized and assumed a pan-Hellenic character. A treaty was negotiated with Sparta whereby every four years all the constantly warring Greek cities laid down their arms and took part in the Olympic games. From all parts of the Peloponnesus, contestants came to Elis, those who had arms being forced to leave them at the border of the sacred district, to regain them upon their departure. The truce thus established lasted for a definite period, known as he hieromenia, or sacred month.

Just as the various nations compete today for the privilege of being host at the games, so did the ancient Greek cities war among themselves over their control. The site remained unchanged, but occasionally the presidency of the games would change hands, following a little wholesale throat-cutting.

The Elisians themselves, on one occasion when the Pisates and the Arcadians were running an Olympiad, broke the truce and stormed the sacred enclosure with naked swords. The athletic sports, already underway, were interrupted in favor of a little active warfare. The Elisians were overwhelmed by force of numbers and indignation and driven back to their camp on the banks of the River Kladeos.

The Olympic games got along fairly well under the protection of Jupiter, however, until the Romans came along and subjugated Greece. As far as the games were concerned, the effect of this was similar to the invasion of a peaceful croquet lawn by some intoxicated soccer players.

The Romans not only wanted to take part in the games. They wanted to win. The affair of the emperor Nero, who fell out of his chariot at the start of a race but was awarded first prize just the same, was among the contributing factors to the decadence and eventual abolition of the Olympic games.

YALE VS. MICHIGAN NEW HAVEN, CONN., April 2—(INS)—The Yale swimming team, the best in the east, faces its hardest test of the season tonight when it meets Michigan, Big Ten Champions. The sectional champions are competing against each other for the first time.

til he tried winning ball games in 1915 without his old stars. Perhaps Rickard can put this one over big without a Dempsey. If he does, I shall not take off my hat to him. He hat, in fact, won't be available. I'll be eating it.

Yes, it sounds very easy if you say it quickly enough. Connie Mack thought it was easy, too, until he tried winning ball games in 1915 without his old stars.

For the first time since Rickard removed his bar apron in favor of a frock coat, he is going out to try to pick up the big money with an oyster fork. He always had a steam shovel in other years. The Gans-Nelson fight couldn't miss. Neither could Jeffries and Johnson. These fights promoted themselves, which was fortunate because it is doubtful whether Rickard knew what it was all about at that time.

Along Came Jack

Later, when times were better and so was Rickard, along came Jack Dempsey with a series of knockouts and the Willard-Dempsey fight was made. So was the entire fight game when Dempsey won in the early minutes of play. The Dempsey-Carpenter fight was a "natural" because of the latter's glamor. Also the Dempsey-Firpo bout for the same reason. The first Dempsey-Tunney fight in Philadelphia drew a great crowd because nobody had seen Dempsey fight for three years and the Chicago affair repeated because they just had to see Dempsey again.

There's the story of Tex Rickard: Dempsey, Dempsey, Dempsey! Can this refrain be altered to sound like Heeney, Heeney, Heeney? The writer is pleased to think not.

For one thing, Heeney is a "cold" challenger. There is no demand for him to fight Tunney or anybody else, for that matter. They might have tossed him in there with Johnny Risko but that fight didn't figure to gross heavy money, after the apathetic series of "eliminations" that were held this winter, and so it was allowed to go by default. Now, they are asking this challenger, who couldn't draw too much with a natural rival, to go in there and produce a million dollar gate with a champion whom everyone characterizes as a "lick-in" against any of them.

Just Anyone

And it could just as well have been any of "them." — Sharkey, Delaney, Risko, Paulino, etc.—because there is no real stand-out in the lot. If Risko had been born in Kamchatka and not Cleveland, he might have received the nod, there being no doubt that Heeney's selection was influenced by the fact that he is a foreigner who might figure to inflate the occasion with an air of internationalism.

Because of this, Rickard may be playing straight in this threat to take the Tunney-Heeney fight to England. The jolly blighters are not accustomed to pay $50 for ringside rows and altogether there

LENINGRAD PLANS AERIAL HOSPITAL

LENINGRAD, April 2.—(UP)—Plans for what is probably the first "aerial hospital" in the world have been announced by the director of the Metchnikoff hospital here, Professor Oppel.

The plans involve the construction of a large platform, hanging from four huge aerostats, and kept from floating off into space by a land anchor. This platform with glass walls as shields against the wind, will be kept aloft at a level suitable for tuberculosis patients.

Prof. Oppel explains that the air which tubercular patients find in mountain spots exists right in Leningrad or any other city. It is merely a matter of rising high enough to locate it. An aerial hospital such as he proposes, he claims, will be cheaper and more practicable than the journeys to strange places usually prescribed by physicians.

Your Baby Needs Water as Well as Milk

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

TAKING care of a baby is one of the most exacting jobs in all the world. You may think it is hard to run a farm, or operate a drug store, or practice law. But I give you my word it is harder work to take care of one husky infant than it is to do all these other things combined.

I should pity a young mother if I thought only of what she has to do. But God is good. There is a reward of satisfaction in motherhood that is above every other human reward. Seeing the baby grow up and develop into useful citizenship is joy unspeakable.

My duties carry me here and there about the country. I spend many hours on railroad trains. It is a common experience to see a couple traveling with two or three young children.

Who is it holds the tired head and finds a new form of play for a restless child? Who prepares the feeding for the baby and supplies a lunch for another hungry mother? It is the mother, of course. Poor papa sits about, feeling and looking as helpless and out of place as a rabbit at a wedding.

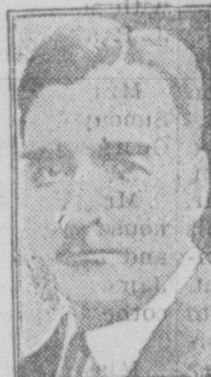

Every mother has an exacting and difficult job. It takes brains, energy, tirelessness, sleeplessness, resourcefulness and every other good quality to do it well.

The young mother with her first baby is in a very trying and exhausting position. She has so much to learn, poor soul!

I have heard my own mother tell how scared she was over the gurgles and funny sounds that were uttered by her first baby. On many occasions she was sure, she said, that the youngster was about to die.

Everybody is touched by the cry of a babe. It always means something, and the young mother has to learn just what each kind of cry indicates, so far as her baby is concerned.

Sometime we will consider at length what the cry of a baby may mean. Today I want to remind you

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

WATERBURY, CONNECTICUT

While the Olympic games have been held but eight times since their revival in 1896, the coming summer will, as a matter of history, be the occasion of the 302nd Olympiad.

The names of Olympic victors first were recorded in 776 B. C., when the games were held at Elis on the banks of the River Alpheus, one of the beauty spots of ancient Hellas.

Every four years, from that time until 393 A. D., when the games were abolished by order of the emperor Theodosius the Great, the foremost athletes of the civilized world met and competed in running, jumping and wrestling; very much as they will at Amsterdam next July.

The character of the contests—many of the details, even—have changed but little with the centuries. In the beginning, the games were part of a religious festival, under the protection of Olympian Jupiter, but the races and bouts, the weight throwing and the jumps were conducted as they are today.

There has been some refinement of athletics since those days of the 8th century, B. C., but not of athletes. The contestants in the ancient Olympic games brought devout concentration to their sports. The Greeks had never heard of over-emphasis.

Olympia, which was a sacred enclosure rather than a city, lay in the smiling valley of the Alpheus, not far from Pisa. The inhabitants of the latter city possessed the valley in ancient times, before the descent of the Dorians, and the Olympic games at first had a strictly local character.

It is not until a gentleman by the name of Iphitos, at the epoch of the Dorian invasion, took matters in hand that the games were definitely organized and assumed a pan-Hellenic character.

A treaty was negotiated with Sparta whereby every four years all the constantly warring Greek cities laid down their arms and took part in the Olympic games. From all parts of the Peloponnesos, contestants came to Elis, those who had arms being forced to leave them at the border of the sacred district, to regain them upon their departure. The truce thus established lasted for a definite period, known as the hieronemia, or sacred month.

Just as the various nations compete today for the privilege of being host at the games, so did the ancient Greek cities war among themselves over their control. The site remained unchanged, but occasionally the presidency of the games would change hands, following a little wholesale throat-cutting.

The Elians themselves, on one occasion when the Pisates and the Arcadians were running an Olympiad, broke the truce and stormed the sacred enclosure with naked swords. The athletic sports, already underway, were interrupted in favor of a little active warfare. The Elians were overwhelmed by force of numbers and indignation and driven back to their camp on the banks of the River Kladeos.

The Olympic games got along fairly well under the protection of Jupiter, however, until the Romans came along and subjugated Greece. As far as the games were concerned, the effect of this was similar to the invasion of a peaceful croquet lawn by some intoxicated soccer players.

The Romans not only wanted to take part in the games. They wanted to win. The affair of the emperor Nero, who fell out of his chariot at the start of a race but was awarded first prize just the same, was among the contributing factors to the decadence and eventual abolition of the Olympic games.

THE ECCENTRICITIES OF YOUTH

MUCH of the talk about the follies and mistakes of youth relates to exaggerated traits that are outgrown. Col. Ed. Fletcher, member of the California State Highway commission, in an interview published in "Association Men," refers to this subject, with this remark:—

"Mrs. Fletcher and I have learned to pay no attention to the eccentricities of our children from the ages of 13 to 18. They outgrow them all. At that age one must expect exaggerated ideas from our children. We have not believed in repression, hence when the family is alone the children do most of the talking—a bedlam at times—heated arguments and free discussion of the impressions received at school during the day."

Col. and Mrs. Fletcher have brought up 10 splendid children, so their theory works out well in their case.

When youth reaches a certain age, it feels a strong desire to assert itself. It wants to feel that it is managing itself and expressing its own ideas. American young people strike out on independent lines for themselves. Some of their ways seem extremely undesirable. Up to a certain age they can be corrected. After that age, they do not take easily to prohibitions.

Frequently better results are obtained by laughing at the follies into which they enter, rather than appearing to be shocked by them. They can be shown that undesirable conduct is silly and ridiculous, and leads them to make fools of themselves.

Parents need to put a whole lot of work and study into the job of bringing up their children. They can't get much success in this task, if they hand over the whole duty of influencing the youngsters to the schools and clubs and churches. It is not a job to be done by proxy.

GERMAN IN THE WHITE HOUSE

ONE more sign that war feeling was blotted out occurred at the White House a few days ago, when Baron von Frittwitz, German ambassador, presented 125 members of the Arion Singing society of Brooklyn to President and Mrs. Coolidge at the White House, and this organization gave songs in German and English. That could not have happened a few years ago.

While the intense war feeling lasted, many schools removed German from their courses. That was poor judgment, for if the German people were as bad as many thought them, it was desirable to know their language, to know what they were up to.

We all have a calmer feeling about it now, and although we do not take back our opinion of what they did in the war, we regard the rulers as principally responsible, and we recognize that the Germans are a people of great power with whom we want to have friendly relations.

THE STOCK MARKET BOILS

TRADING on the New York stock exchange has broken all records. There have been 10 consecutive full day sessions when the business passed the 3,000,000 share mark. The American people thus have their speculative spirit very much excited. A lot of them are going to lose some money.

Probably only a minority of these people have made any careful study of the corporations in which they are investing. Many of them, before they get through, will wish they had kept the money in the old home town bank.

Gone away
Feeling
Mighty gay,
For here a snowdrift
Piled up high
As though to touch
The very sky
And hid my rose
Soon—
It stayed a short
Time
After June—
And so I know
It won't be long
'Till I will hear
The summer song
Of kindred
Birds
Here at my door
And all my thoughts
And hopes will
Soar
To higher spots
And greater planes
And they will
Grow
With warm, spring
Rains—
The warmth of Heaven's
In the air
And I've forgotten
All my care—

And what we mean to say
Is,
Cast off your coat
Of Fret and Doubt
And fill your lungs
With lusty shout,
A thousand reasons
Friend, why you
Should see a hundred
Skies of blue;
A million reasons
Why the sun
Should set upon
A task well done—
So place your
Soul
Upon a wing
And let it sail in
With the Spring!

Years ahead of its time in design; it'll still be up to date five years from now. I wouldn't take a dime less than $1,500 for it today."

(To the tax collector): "What! You value that at $500? Man, you're mad. The car is two years old. If I started it, you'd be scared out of the neighborhood. That's a liability instead of an asset; in fact, I'd give it away if I could find anyone that would take it. Couldn't get a cent for it in the market. A BUSINESS BAROMETER FOR THE CIRCUS

Hollywood by Dave Keene

By DAVE KEENE
(Special to The Herald)

HILLYWOOD, April 2 — The so-called "fan" magazines and the drama pages of the daily press might well be called the text books of the motion picture industry. Astute producers are avid readers of commentary opinion. They carefully scan each page, each paragraph, of publications that have to do with subjects cinematic.

For in these media trends in picture tastes are anticipated; potential starts are singled out for praise; critical don'ts are listed as warnings. It is public opinion for all to read and benefit by. For if the public is not pleased who is left?

James R. Quirk, the veteran and sometimes caustic editor and publisher of one of the leading film publications, sums it up. I caught Quirk just before he took train for New York, ending one of his frequent visits to the film capital.

"Crystallizing the thought of the mute millions of motion picture patrons—that is the real purpose of the 'fan' magazine of today," said Quirk.

"Fan" magazines are sometimes referred to as the discoverers of screen talent. That is never true. The magazine and the drama page merely report what the public notices—the work of some new playlet, the beauty of some minor actress, the distinctive technique of a new director."

It was in this way that the "discovery" of Florence Vidor was brought to the attention of Hollywood's film makers. A few years ago Miss Vidor, then very much unknown, appeared for just a flash in "A Tale of Two Cities."

Quirk, in the audience, sensed that the spectators reacted to that mere flash of a beautiful face, a vivid personality. He so reported in his published review of the picture. Hollywood's picture makers of course, read that review. And a spirited bidding for Miss Vidor's services followed, with her eventually reaching stardom.

Many others have been singled out in the same way. Vox Populi is the star maker.

Many of the famous motion picture directors of today have at one time or another been camera men. The best example of this is Victor Fleming, whose three most recent pictures are: "The Way of

All Flesh," "Hilla" and "Abie's Irish Rose."

Fleming, as a cameraman during the war, was drafted from the signal corps by President Wilson to make the trip to France with the Wilson party. Thus it came about that Fleming was perhaps the only sergeant who gave orders to Pershing in those military times. It happened one day at Versailles. "Move over to the right, General," Fleming, behind his camera, ordered. And Pershing became a director shortly after he returned to Hollywood from the war.

Now another cameraman has taken the step upward. He is Bert Glennon, who photographed so many of Pola Negri's pictures and who has just finished as chief cinematographer on the Ernst Lubitsch production, "High Treason," which stars Emil Jannings. Glennon has gone to the F. B. O. studios as a director and his first picture sounds thrilling. It is called "The Perfect Crime."

Al Christie, the maker of comedies, has invented what he chooses to call the "laugh-meter." It is a phonographic recording device and is taken to theaters with previews of his pictures are shown. It catches the laughs as the audience gives them, and unmistakably makes note whether they are mere chuckles, guffaws or, best of all (and your pardon please) "belly-laughs"—the ne plus ultra of them all. The film and the phonograph are taken back to the studio and changes in the picture are made accordingly, as needed.

Adolphe Menjou and Kathryn Carver, with some friends have left for Europe and a Paris wedding to take place sometime in May. Before she left Miss Carver paid the Hollywood dressmaker the compliment of compliments. She bought her complete outfit in the local shops and salons. A friend to whom I related it tried to make some remark about "Carrying clothes to Newcastle," but I did not hear what he said.

My inside informant of things fashionable today pointed out that feminine Hollywood has adopted violet as the favored shade. She tells me that at the Mayfair club last night at least ten of the dinner gowns were trimmed with violet and one worn by Esther Ralston was wholly of violet hue. An exclusive shop on the Boulevard is showing sport suits of violet-dyed flannel and the millinery establishments are all featuring the shade.

THE MOVIE DICTIONARY

Road Show — A special film released in ten or more reels that plays "two a day,"—a matinee and a night showing.

Grind — A continuous performance theater.

Trailer — A short reel of scenes from coming attractions, shown by theaters to stimulate business.

For good reason 30-year-old William Wellman, the effervescent director of "Wings," is known in Hollywood as "Bill." Standing across the street from the Paramount studio, an area where auto parking is prohibited, Wellman noticed a policeman about to write a ticket for a friend of his. "Hey! You can't do that," Wellman shouted to the grim visaged officer, and followed this challenge with "a torrent of classic abuse that brought the policeman across the street on the run. Whereupon the friend shot his car into gear and drove rapidly away. Wellman faced by the angry officer, calmly and suavely explained that his remarks had been addressed to the driven, not to the law. "And by the way," he concluded, "I'm afraid your customer has left." In deference to the majesty of the law it should be explained that this officer is one permanently detailed to the studio. He knows the ways of picture folk, and they know him. He really enjoyed the joke very much.

The Cinderella story crops up every day. Now it is Dorothy Ward. Gotham has just signed her for five years. Dorothy, clerking in a local five and ten cent store, was "discovered" by Phyllis Haver. That Dorothy got her break is not unusual. Many others have had the same good fortune. The unexplainable thing is, what took Phyllis Haver to the dime store?

The chief item in the production news of the week is that Wallace Beery is to play Oklahoma Red in the film version of Jim Tully's "Beggars of Life." Victor McLaglen's next picture is to be a story of the English navy. Marshal Neilan is going to England to direct pictures. Ramon Novarro leaves soon for London and while there will write the script for his next picture.

150,000 LIKELY TO ATTEND BIG VETS' SESSION

San Antonio Is Getting Ready to Greet Veterans of World War.

SAN ANTONIO, April 2 — (INS) — After hearing the 1923 national convention program outlined by Philip B. Stapp, general convention director, and the local committee, National Commander Edward E. Spafford, of The American Legion, on his recent visit here, predicted that the convention attendance, October 8th to 12th, will be the greatest in the Legion's history.

He stated that he expects the crowd here for the great gathering to reach 150,000.

San Antonio showed the commander some of the scenes of historic interest which will attract Legionnaires and Auxiliary members on their visit here—Fort Sam Houston, where thousands of men trained during the World War; the aviation center, the old missions and the cathedral, 200 years old and over. At the Alamo, where in 1836, every man in a band of 172 Texans, including the famous scout Davy Crockett, lost his life before a Mexican army that outnumbered them 25 to 1, Commander Spafford, in company with Governor Dan Moody, Judge Ernest A. Crockett a grandson of the immortal Davy, and high officials of army and city, laid a wreath in the name of the Legion.

The municipal auditorium where the Legion will hold its convention sessions, was shown to the commander. Built at a cost of more than $2,000,000 as a memorial to the men of the World War, the auditorium is the finest structure in which the Legion has ever assembled in national convocation.

SYNOPSIS

Because Jackie, son of Cantor Rabinowitz, prefers jazz to synagogue music, he leaves home. Ten years elapse. Through Mary Dale, a dancer, Jackie, now Jack Robin, becomes a musical comedy jazz singer. The Cantor, discovering his son's profession, disowns him. Jack's show opens the Eye of Tom Kipper. Dillings, the baker of the show, jealous of Mary's love for Jack, withdraws his money, leaving Lee, the producer, dependent on Jack for success. The Cantor is ill and Yudelson, his friend, begs Jack to sing in the synagogue that night. Jack refuses. But Mrs. Rabinowitz decides to talk to her son herself. Mary is trying to comfort Jack.

"What's the matter, Jack?" Mary leaned against the wall where she could look at the singer as he made up. Her interest in her costume had completely deserted her. She realized now that there was something quite radically wrong and the best thing to do was talk the matter over and see what it was. The thought of Yudelson and his request to see Jack "in person" flashed across her mind. "Has it something to do with that man who was here just now?" she questioned. "Well, yes, in a way," Jack returned to the dressing table and began smoothing the black make-up over his face.

"What's the matter with him? What did he want?" Mary's questions might have sounded almost impertinent but she knew that the best thing to do was to draw Jack into some kind of conversation and allow him to confide his troubles. "He wasn't him—he just brought me a message—a message from my father and mother."

"It's not right! It's not right! Jack," Mary burst out. "Don't they know this is your opening night? You mustn't be disturbed this way. Oh, Jack, I just want to keep you away from everything—from everybody—until tonight is over. This is your night—the biggest night of your life!"

"Sure, I know, Mary—you're right, but—but—" Jack turned away sadly.

"But what, Jack? What is the matter? I don't mean to be inquisitive, but something terrible's bothering you. What is it, Jack?" Mary pleaded.

"It's what Yudelson—that man that was here—it's what he told me, Mary, he told me things that are making me hate myself," Jack faced about and gazed at Mary with the tragedy of despair written on his features.

"If you'll tell me about it perhaps I can help you," Mary suggested softly.

"I don't know so, Mary. No one can help me now but myself. You—you couldn't understand my—my feelings about this. It's something that's inside me—born in me—Oh, I don't know, and I'm fighting it, fighting it, I tell you—God knows why! Yes, I know why! Jack's voice sobbed out his mental agony. "But—I—I can't tell you," his voice dropped; his head bowed.

"Yes, I can understand those things, Jack," Mary was watching the boy intently, catching his mood, his feelings. "Tell me some more."

"No, I tell you, I can't," Jack spoke roughly. He wanted to talk, but there was something that restrained him—a vague fear of revealing his innermost sentiments to someone who might not understand. "If I told you, you'd hate me, too."

"No, Jack, I don't think so," Jack don't think there's anything that could make me hate you," she stood silent, contemplating the boy before her. Another thought came to her mind. She picked at the ostrich plumes on her dress absently. Finally she looked up shyly—a strange attitude for Mary who usually decided what she wanted and then went after it in a direct manner. "Jack," she asked gravely, "did you—when you said you loved me—did you mean it?"

WARMTH

King Winter's
Feeling
Mighty gay,
For here a snowdrift
Piled up high
As though to touch
The very sky
And hid my rose
Soon—
It stayed a short
Time
After June—
And so I know
It won't be long
'Till I will hear
The summer song
Of kindred
Birds
Here at my door
And all my thoughts
And hopes will
Soar
To higher spots
And greater planes
And they will
Grow
With warm, spring
Rains—
The warmth of Heaven's
In the air
And I've forgotten
All my care—
And what we mean to say
Is,
Cast off your coat
Of Fret and Doubt
And fill your lungs
With lusty shout,
A thousand reasons
Friend, why you
Should see a hundred
Skies of blue;
A million reasons
Why the sun
Should set upon
A task well done—
So place your
Soul
Upon a wing
And let it sail in
With the Spring!

Oh, spring is in the atmosphere,
And spring is in the dell,

OUR FAIRY TALE FOR TODAY
Once there was a woman who didn't talk back to her husband, and didn't care to indorse a certain brand of cigarettes and who never asked her husband where he had been when he dragged in at 4 a. m.

TODAY'S BEST STORY
"HIS CAR" (To his friend): "The greatest car that ever wore tires. In the two years I've owned it I haven't spent a dime for repairs; it looks just as good as the day I bought it. Years ahead of its time in design; it'll still be up to date five years from now. I wouldn't take a dime less than $1500 for it today."

To the tax collector: "What! You value that at $500? Man, you're mad. The car is two years old. If I started it, you'd be scared out of the neighborhood. That's a liability instead of an asset; in fact, I'd give it away if I could find anyone that would take it. Couldn't get a cent for it in the market. And besides, it belongs to a friend of mine and I'm just storing it for him."—Laughing Gas.

A BUSINESS BAROMETER FOR THE CIRCUS

by Dave Keene

By DAVE KEENE
(Special to The Herald)

HOLLYWOOD, April 2 — The so-called "fan" magazines and the drama pages of the daily press might well be called the text books of the motion picture industry. Astute producers are avid readers of commentary opinion. They carefully scan each page, each paragraph, of publications that have to do with subjects cinematic.

For in these media trends in picture tastes are anticipated; potential starts are singled out for praise; critical don'ts are listed as warnings. It is public opinion for all to read and benefit by. For if the public is not pleased who is left?

James R. Quirk, the veteran and sometimes caustic editor and publisher of one of the leading film publications, sums it up. I caught Quirk just before he took train for New York, ending one of his frequent visits to the film capital.

"Crystallizing the thought of the mute millions of motion picture patrons—that is the real purpose of the 'fan' magazine of today," said Quirk.

"Fan" magazines are sometimes referred to as the discoverers of screen talent. That is never true. The magazine and the drama page merely report what the public notices—the work of some new play-actress, the beauty of some minor actress, the distinctive technique of a new director.

It was in this way that the "discovery" of Florence Vidor was brought to the attention of Hollywood's film makers. A few years ago Miss Vidor, then very much unknown, appeared for just a flash in "A Tale of Two Cities."

Quirk, in the audience, sensed that the spectators reacted to that mere flash of a beautiful face, a vivid personality. He so reported in his published review of the picture. Hollywood's picture makers, of course, read that review. And a spirited bidding for Miss Vidor's services followed, with her eventually reaching stardom.

Many others have been singled out in the same way. Vox Populi is the star maker.

tells me that at the Mayfair club last night at least ten of the dinner gowns were trimmed with violet and one worn by Esther Ralston was wholly of violet hue. An exclusive shop on the Boule- vard is showing sport suits of violet-dyed flannel and the millinery establishments are all featuring the shade.

THE MOVIE DICTIONARY
Road Show — A special film released in ten or more reels that plays "two a day," a matinee and a night showing.
Grand — A continuous performance theater.
Trailer — A short reel of scenes from coming attractions, shown by theaters to stimulate business.

For good reason 30-year-old William Wellman, the effervescent director of "Wings," is known in Hollywood as "Wild Bill." Standing across the street from the Paramount studio, an area where auto parking is prohibited, Wellman noticed a policeman about to write a ticket for a friend of his. "Hey! You can't do that," Wellman shouted to the grim visaged officer, and followed this challenge with "a torrent of classic abuse that brought the policeman across the street on the run. Whereupon the friend shot his car into gear and drove rapidly away. Wellman faced by the angry officer, calmly and squarely explained that his remarks had been addressed to the driven, not to the law. "And by the way," he concluded, "I'm afraid your customer has left."

In deference to the majesty of the law it should be explained that this officer is one permanently detailed to the studio. He knows the ways of picture folk, and they know him. He really enjoyed the joke very much.

The Cinderella story drops up every day. Now it is Dorothy Ward. Gehman has just signed her for five years. Dorothy, clerking in a local five and ten cent store, was "discovered" by Phyllis Haver. That Dorothy got her break is not unusual. Many others have had the same good fortune. The unexplainable thing is, what took Phyllis Haver to the time store?

The chief item in the production news of the week is that Wallace Beery is to play Oklahoma Red in the film version of Jim Tully's "Beggars of Life." Victor McLaglen's next picture is to be a story of the English navy. Merle Oberon is going to England to direct pictures. Ramon Novarro leaves soon for London and while there will write the script for his next picture.

Week's Best Substitute
"Take care of your-elf, Abie, and don't get shot. Stay near the general."—Julian Johnson in "Abie's Irish Rose."

Talking about stimulating the news, the state emergency board this week reported 238 prisoners from the Mansfield reformatory.—Marion, O. Star.

150,000 LIKELY TO ATTEND BIG VETS' SESSION

San Antonio Is Getting Ready to Greet Veterans of World War.

SAN ANTONIO, April 2 — (INS) —After hearing the 1923 national convention program outlined by Philip B. Stapp, general convention director, and the local committee, National Commander Edward E. Spafford, of The American Legion, on his recent visit here, predicted that the convention attendance, October 8th to 12th, will be the greatest in the Legion's history.

He stated that he expects the crowd here for the great gathering to reach 150,000.

San Antonio showed the commander some of the scenes of historic interest which will attract Legionnaires and Auxiliary members on their visit here—Fort Sam Houston, where thousands of men trained during the World war; the aviation center, the old missions and the cathedral, 200 years old and over. At the Alamo, where in 1836, every man in a band of 172 Texans, including the famous scout Davy Crockett, lost his life before a Mexican army that outnumbered them 25 to 1, Commander Spafford, in company with Governor Dan Moody, Judge Ernest A. Crockett a grandson of the immortal Davy, and high officials of army and city, laid a wreath in the name of the Legion.

The municipal auditorium where the Legion will hold its convention sessions, was shown to the commander. Built at a cost of more than $2,000,000 as a memorial to the men of the World war, the auditorium is the finest structure in which the Legion has ever assembled in national convolve.

"I sure did—you know that, Mary. I'm crazy about you," Jack was startled for a moment at the question.

"Well, I wasn't sure—exactly. I didn't know. But now that I do know—it makes a difference. You see, Jack, ever since you told me about your father I've been thinking about you. The son of a Cantor. I can't get you out of my mind."

"Maybe it's better that you didn't get me out of your mind," Jack spoke harshly and began viciously modeling a huge, red mouth around his lips. "Maybe it would be better if I got you out of my mind. Yudelson, and everything he said—well, it gave me a different slant on things. I can see things now I didn't see before. Oh, I know, they were there, and right, but they were so far away. They seemed so far away. But suddenly they've become important. I understand them better."

"You mean—" Mary began. "I mean the difference between you and me. Don't you see? Yudelson and me—Dillings and you—well, we're pretty far apart. You stand for certain things, and I stand for others. I saw it as soon as I talked to Yudelson. I knew it—but I didn't bother about it that day. Dillings—that day—he didn't want to talk to me. He wasn't all just because of you, Mary, he didn't speak—it was me, I didn't belong."

"But I'm not like he is. I'm not like Dillings," Mary defended herself.

"Maybe not, but you're not like me. Oh, I know," he laid up his hand in a warning gesture as Mary started to speak. "I know what you think. I'm a rough diamond. You'll take hold of me and polish me, and make me like you. Well, you can't! I tell you, you can't! All my life, I'm going to be just what I am. And you're going to be just what you are. You can't do it!" Jack buried his head in his arms and sighed brokenly.

"Then why did you say you loved me, Jack," she said slowly.

For a long time Jack made no answer. Finally he raised his head and there were tears in his eyes. "Do you really want to know?" his voice came faintly.

"Yes," Mary nodded.

"All right then, I'll tell you," Jack straightened up, his muscles tense, his breath coming quickly. "I'll tell you. Because I couldn't help it. That's why."

"Well, then," Mary questioned. "But love means marriage, to me," Jack continued, "and marriage means a home and kids. I'd like to have a kid like you—a little boy—but I'd want him to be like you," Jack's voice softened, and his tension relaxed for the moment. "My God, I'm crazy about you."

"Jack," Mary moved closer, "would you—would you mind saying that again?"

"No! I won't say it again!" The old hardness came back. "I won't say it again. I've got no right to say it at all. He got up stiffly and went over to the wardrobe, talking over his shoulder. "When Yudelson came and told me."

But he got no farther. Mary ran and stood in front of him, blocking his way. "Jack," she said, "come here." She led him back to his chair and sat down beside him. "Now, listen, you've got to forget all this nonsense. We won't talk about it any more. Let's just talk about ourselves—about you and me." She took his hand tenderly.

"I can't forget, Mary. I can't forget what Yudelson said," Jack moaned. "He told me my father is sick. Tonight is the eve of the Day of Atonement. You can't understand what that means, Mary, to my people. It's the most solemn, the most holy day of the Jewish year. It's the great day of every Cantor's life—it's the day when he becomes the mouthpiece of the congregation. He talks to God—he talks to God not for himself, but for all those people who come to worship in the synagogue. He asks for forgiveness for them. It is he who brings to God the burden of their sins. Can you understand?"

"Yes, Jack, I know," Mary nodded.

"My father is a Cantor. For five generations the Rabinowitzes have been Cantors. For five generations they have called to God for the people of their synagogue. The name Rabinowitz, like a trade mark on Orchard Street. All these years my father has sung for his people. And all these years before him his father sang for their people. Now, my father is sick. For the first time in five generations no Rabinowitz will sing the 'Kol Nidre' on the eve of the Day of Atonement. My mother sent Yudelson to ask me to come and sing in my father's place. There is no other Rabinowitz to sing." (To be continued)

BIBLE THOUGHT

A GOOD NEIGHBOR — Devise not evil against thy neighbor, seeing he dwelleth securely by thee.—Prov. 3:29.

PRAYER—May we, Lord, prove that we are good neighbors by manifesting Thy Spirit to nations as well as individuals.

THE ECCENTRICITIES OF YOUTH

MUCH of the talk about the follies and mistakes of youth relates to exaggerated traits that are outgrown. Col. Ed. Fletcher, member of the California State Highway commission, in an interview published in "Association Men," refers to this subject, with this remark:—

"Mrs. Fletcher and I have learned to pay no attention to the eccentricities of our children from the ages of 13 to 18. They outgrow them all. At that age one must expect exaggerated ideas from our children. We have not believed in repression, hence when the family is alone the children do most of the talking—a bedlam at times—heated arguments and free discussion of the impressions received at school during the day."

Col. and Mrs. Fletcher have brought up 10 splendid children, so their theory works out well in their case.

When youth reaches a certain age, it feels a strong desire to assert itself. It wants to feel that it is managing itself and expressing its own ideas. American young people strike out on independent lines for themselves. Some of their ways seem extremely undesirable. Up to a certain age they can be corrected. After that age, they do not take easily to prohibitions.

Frequently better results are obtained by laughing at the follies into which they enter, rather than appearing to be shocked by them. They can be shown that undesirable conduct is silly and ridiculous, and leads them to make fools of themselves.

Parents need to put a whole lot of work and study into the job of bringing up their children. They can't get much success in this task, if they hand over the whole duty of influencing the youngsters to the schools and clubs and churches. It is not a job to be done by proxy.

GERMAN IN THE WHITE HOUSE
ONE more sign that war feeling was blotted out occurred at the White House a few days ago, when Baron von Prittwitz, German ambassador, presented 125 members of the Arion Singing society of Brooklyn to President and Mrs. Coolidge at the White House, and this organization gave songs in German and English. That could not have happened a few years ago.

While the intense war feeling lasted, many schools removed German from their courses. That was poor judgment, for if the German people were as bad as many thought them, it was desirable to know their language, to know what they were up to.

We all have a calmer feeling about it now, and although we do not take back our opinion of what they did in the war, we regard the rulers as principally responsible, and we recognize that the Germans are a people of great power with whom we want to have friendly relations.

THE STOCK MARKET BOILS
TRADING on the New York stock exchange has broken all records. There have been 10 consecutive full day sessions when the business passed the 3,000,000 share mark. The American people thus have their speculative spirit very much excited. A lot of them are going to lose some money.

Probably only a minority of these people have made any careful study of the corporations in which they are investing. Many of them, before they get through, will wish they had kept the money in the old home town bank.

Mr. Dunlap while here was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Bales. He will go to Delaware Tuesday to attend the funeral of his friend, the late U. S. Senator Frank B. Willis.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP.

Management, Circulation, etc., Required by the Act of Congress, Of August 24, 1912.

Of the Circleville Herald, published daily, at Circleville, Ohio, for April 1928.

State of Ohio, County of Pickaway, ss.

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared Norman W. Ralston, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Editor and Manager of the Circleville Herald, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management (and if a daily paper, the circulation), etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 411, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to-wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are:

Editor, Norman W. Ralston, Circleville, Ohio.
Managing Editor, Lee E. Dimond, Circleville, Ohio.
Business Manager, Norman W. Ralston, Circleville, Ohio.

2. That the owner is: (If owned by a corporation, its name and address must be stated and also immediately thereunder the names and addresses of the individual owners must be given. If owned by a firm, company, or other unincorporated concern, its name and address, as well as those of each individual member, must be given.)

A. H. Hootsinger, Dover, O.; E. P. Wible, Dover, O.; Norman W. Ralston, Circleville, O.; Walter Reese, Dover, O.; S. J. Reeves, Dover, O.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 percent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state.) None.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholders or security holders appear upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as such, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds or other securities than as so stated by him.

5. That the average number of copies of this publication sold or distributed, through the mails or otherwise, to paid subscribers during the six months preceding the date shown above is 3241.

NORMAN W. RALSTON, Editor.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 2nd day of April, 1928.

ANNA SHEA.

Nowhere Else Such Features for

At the right is listed a group of advancements in design which never before have been combined in any low-priced six! Some of them—such as the G-M-R cylinder head and the cross-flow radiator—rank as master strokes of engineering. Yet these are only the new features that have been added to the basic design which enabled the Pontiac Six to make automobile history in the past two years!

You still get the largest engine used in any low-priced six. You still get an oiling system which forces 250 gallons an hour through the engine at 35 m. p. h. You still get the ability to maintain 50 miles an hour or more for as long as you like. Come in! Learn by comparison and by driving that you get the biggest, staunchest, most beautiful low-priced six the market affords today.
